

Feeding the Beef Cowherd for Maximum Profit

Danny D. Simms

Contents

- ▶ The Beef Cow Digestive System
- ▶ The Nutrients – Their Function and Importance in a Good Nutrition Program
- ▶ Importance of Reproduction on Profitability
- ▶ Importance of Using Body Condition Score as a Tool in the Nutrition Program
- ▶ Relationship Between Body Condition Score and Reproduction
- ▶ Determining Diet Adequacy in Production Situations
- ▶ Practical Supplementation Programs for Protein, Energy, Minerals, and Vitamins
- ▶ Supplementation Delivery Systems
- ▶ Economics of Supplementation – Maximizing Profitability Through a Cost-Effective Supplementation Program

Special Topics

- ▶ Feeding High Fats Diets to Improve Reproduction
- ▶ Management Practices to Reduce Supplementation Costs
- ▶ Feeding Replacement Heifers
- ▶ Feeding Breeding Bulls
- ▶ Using Feed Analyses – Developing a Cost-Effective Program
- ▶ Feeding During Drought

- ▶ Feeding Early Weaned Calves
- ▶ Using By-Product Feeds in a Cow/Calf Operation
- ▶ Interpreting a Feed Tag
- ▶ Ammoniation of Roughages
- ▶ Nutritional Diseases
- ▶ Managing Feed Costs – Putting It All Together

Reference Section

- ▶ Detailed Animal Requirement Tables Based on the 1996 NRC Nutrient Requirements of Beef Cattle Model
- ▶ Feed Composition Tables for Feedstuffs Commonly Used in Beef Cowherds
- ▶ By-Product Feedstuff Composition Tables

Target Audience

- ▶ Cattle Producers
- ▶ Extension Agents
- ▶ Feed Company Sales Personnel
- ▶ Veterinarians
- ▶ Students